

Miguel Vélez Rubio

Dr. Miguel Vélez Rubio is currently the Interim Chancellor of the University of Puerto Rico at Bayamón.

He is an Associate Professor of the Computer Sciences Department. Professionally he had been initially a Lab Technician for the Engineering Department and Short Courses professor but later he began teaching as part of the Computer Sciences faculty.

Concurrently he first was Academic Computing Office Chair, Second Computer Sciences Department Chair, and third Assistant Dean of Academics Affairs.

The educational background of Dr. Vélez Rubio includes a BS in Computer Sciences from UPR at Bayamón, an MS in Software Engineering from UPR at Mayagüez, a Post Master Certification in College Teaching from Capella University at Minneapolis, Minnesota, and a Ph.D. in Information Technology with Concentration in Information Technology Education from Capella University.

He had participated in many projects, committees and organizations in and out of the University throughout 28 years.